

Installing a Puig front fender extender

While I was in the mode of adhering things today, I decided to plunge in on the Puig front fender extender. There was a PUIG sticker on the cello bag that it all came in, but no real branding on the $55 piece of plastic itself. And, the instructions refer to it as the "ExtendaFenda". Option to just use the multitude of stickers or use stickers and drill holes; I'll take the former.

You basically form a "gasket" (the instructions say) by lining up stickers along the edge that butts up to the fender's edge, then fill in the rest of the area. More PanelWipe on the underside of the fender, slip it into place, squeeze, then clamp for good measure. Real layon-the-garage-floor type of work, but that's half the fun, right? Didn't realize how bobbed the front fender was vs. every other bike I've owned. Anyway, fun project.
